

New Technology Offerings for

GOOGLE TRANSIT

Google Transit provides a free online trip planning service. Google Transit can be accessed at www.google.com/transit. The opening page allows the user to enter address information for the “From” and “To” of the desired trip via public transportation. Address information can be very specific (address #, street name, city, state) for detailed local fixed route information, or more broad (city and state) for longer distance travel (e.g. Mammoth to Bishop, or Mammoth to Lancaster, Los Angeles, or Reno). The Google Transit trip planner provides information for public transit trip options based upon available transit service, as well as fare information for the desired trip. The trip planner also provides connection information to connecting transit agencies where available (e.g. Metrolink in southern California, RTC in Reno, AVTA in Lancaster).

NEXTBUS

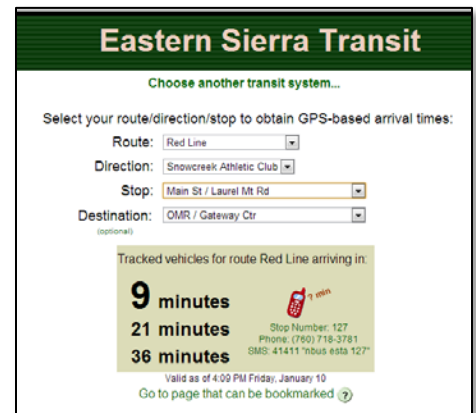

NextBus provides real-time bus arrival information for specific transit stops. At this time, NextBus information is available for the following ESTA routes:

- Red Line
- Night Trolley
- Mammoth Express (Mammoth to Bishop route)
- Lone Pine Express (Bishop to Lone Pine route)
- Reno Route (service between Lone Pine and Reno)
- Lancaster Route (service between Mammoth and Lancaster)

NextBus arrival information can be accessed by telephone, text message, or on the Internet.

- By Telephone: call 760.718.3781 and enter the Stop ID# (available at each stop). For example, Stop #56 will provide information for Bishop K-Mart.
- By Text Message: text “nbus esta [Stop ID#]” to 41411.
- Via the Internet: Access the NextBus website at www.nextbus.com and follow the prompts for Eastern Sierra Transit. If the NextBus website is accessed from a smartphone, the system will automatically identify the nearest stop and bus arrival times if the user allows the site to use their location. Smartphone users can easily access this information by bookmarking the NextBus mobile site to their home screen.

For further information about Eastern Sierra Transit and the technologies available for ESTA's services, call 760.872.1901 or visit ESTA's website at www.estransit.com.